RACQ appoints new Group Executive Insurance

RACQ has appointed Trent Sayers to lead the Club's insurance arm as Group Executive Insurance.

RACQ CEO David Carter said as one of Queensland's largest insurers, RACQ is delighted to have someone of Mr Sayers' calibre to support our insurance members across the State.

"Trent joined RACQ earlier this year as General Manager Claims before being appointed acting Group Executive Insurance," Mr Carter said.

"Trent brings a wealth of experience from across multiple insurance functions including claims, product, pricing and distribution.

"His passion and commitment for our members is clear, having supported many of them during one of the worst natural disasters in our Club's history earlier this year.

"As Queensland continues to face an increasing threat of more frequent and severe natural disasters, ensuring insurance remains affordable and accessible is a core focus for RACQ."

Mr Sayers has more than 25 years' experience in the financial services and general insurance industries. Prior to joining RACQ, he was Chief Executive Officer of RACT Insurance and held various positions at AAMI Insurance.

Mr Sayers said he was proud to be taking the reins and helping lead RACQ Insurance into the future.

"I am honoured to have been appointed to this role and given the opportunity to build on RACQ's reputation as a trusted insurer at a time when the industry is facing challenges and changes," Mr Sayers said.

"Our Queensland-based insurance team provides outstanding products and services, and we'll continue to support our members and their communities, particularly in their time of need, now and into the future."
